The Gage takes its name from the Gage Group of buildings (18-24 South Michigan). Constructed in the late 1800s and now historically landmarked, the buildings housed three milliners, including the Gage Brothers & Co. founded by David and George Gage. Gage Brothers & Co. supplied hats to fashionable ladies throughout the U.S. and abroad.

The installation in the staircase to our lower level features original early 20th century theater magazine advertisements for Gage hats which were known for their "superb style, sterling quality and superior workmanship".
